The Place to Grow Bananas.

The country most extensively cultivated for the growth of bananas, and which for the past three months has so distinguished itself by the unusual quality and fine development of its products, is situated in the Republic of Colombia, Bocas del Toro being now the shipping center and principal attraction for planters and merchants engaged in the industry.

There are at the present time, taken at a rough estimate, no less than 18,000 acres of land devoted entirely to the cultivation of bananas, from which can be shipped weekly 30,000 bunches, all averaging 250 bunches to each bunch. These are termed "whole bunches"—besides which about 25,000 bunches of a smaller size, averaging 300 bunches each (which are termed halves) still remain uncut,
and at the expiration of another week attain their full size, when they also are ready for shipment.

At the lapse of the same length of time perhaps twice the quantity of bunches are ready to be cut, and so on from week to week, month to month, and year to year. New plantations are continually starting up, taking ten months from the time the "snickers," or plants, are first put into the ground to the time they commence to yield.—Cor.

Wholesale Deer Killing in the Northwest.
Parties who have been out hunting in the country between the headwaters of the forks of the Santiam bring back accounts of a wholesale destruction of deer in that region by Indians. Bands of Warm Spring and Klickitat Indians, numbering from 150 to 200, get permission about July 1 to come over into the Willamette valley to pick hops and leave their reservations. They come in over the Santiam wagon road and make a camp at Indian prairie, and then organize a grand roundup of deer. They surround a vast tract of country on their ponies, which they ride through a country that a white man can hardly get through on foot, and drive the deer toward a human center, and slaughter them by hundreds, killing bucks, fawns and does indiscriminately, drying the choice parts of the meat for winter supplies. It is stated that in the region about the headwaters of the various forks of the Santiam, Indians have this season slaughtered over 1,000 deer.—

How Some Lazy Fellows Gamble.
"Rain gambling" is the latest vogue development India, and the police of Bombay and Calcutta are just now vigorously at work preventing rain gamblers in the local courts in an endeavor to show that the law includes this form of gambling. In Calcutta the "outfit" of the rain gamblers is in a street in the burrabazaar. Here into a small tank, four feet square and six inches deep, an ordinary spout discharges rain water from the roof of a three story building.
In gambling with this apparatus bets are made at the beginning of the rainy season as to whether or not the tank will overflow at a given shower; to the extent the rain will overflow it when the water sheets come down in proper tropical style. It is alleged that on busy days in the bazaar several lakhs of rupees change hands. This is surely vice made easy for the lazy man.—Exchange.

it's mutton, then again it's turkey or was woodchuck. Five groundhogs—four dead and one alive—were on exhibition.—Albany Express.

General Buckner, County School Superintendent of Humboldt county, says that in school districts where trustees were voted for at the general election last November, he shall appoint the person or persons who received a plurality of the vote as he regards such vote as an instruction from the electors of the school district to appoint those who received it.

The Gazette of last evening after laboriously constructing an article on the Plummer interview to appear as though the JOURNAL had noticeably misquoted that gentleman, gets down on its metaphorical knees and "apologizes to Mr. Plummer for its somewhat harsh comments upon what it appears he never said." Such awful expression of remorse at this ought to bring instant forgiveness from a bolder heart than Mr. Plummer's.

O. B. May and Frank Hawley, who were convicted of being implicated in the attempted train robbery at Montello, Elko county, in 1892, passed through last night on their way to Utah, having served out their term. They were restored to citizenship for good behavior at a special session of the Board of Pardons. They are yet young and do not look like bad men. They regret their folly and expect to make amends for it by being good citizens the rest of their lives.

BEST SUGAR.

An Address from the President of the Colorado Beet Sugar Association.

A copy of the call for the second annual meeting of the Colorado Beet Sugar Association issued by President A. C. Fisk, has been received by Professor Wilson, chemist of the Nevada State University.

WHAT BEET SUGAR FACTORIES WOULD DO. President Fisk says: "The erection of beet sugar factories would more than double the value of our lands and give employment to a large number, and stimulate every industry in our State. We import 1,600,000 tons of sugar into this country every year, for which we pay $165,000,000. The bounty on this amount of sugar would amount to $75,000,000 per annum, this money would be distributed at home among the producing classes instead of being sent abroad. It would require 700 factories to produce the amount of sugar we now import; of this number Colorado should have at least 100, that would require in their construction $50,000,000; foreign capital; each factory would cost $500,000; 80 tons of coal, 60 tons of coke, and 80 tons of limestone, and would turn out about 70 tons of refined sugar. From careful estimates it is believed that each factory would give employment directly and indirectly, in the cultivation of the beets, hauling them to the mills, mining and handling the coal and limestone, and burning the coke to about 13,000 people; 100 factories would therefore give employment to about 1,300,000 people, and probably add to the population of Colorado 5,000,000 people. It requires 5,000 acres of ground to furnish beets for each factory. One hundred factories would take 500,000 acres of land, which we will suppose is worth, properly irrigated, $30 per acre, $15,000,000, and the beet factories would at least double the value of this land, which would add $15,000,000 to the taxable wealth of this State, to say nothing of the stimulus given by each factory to the coal mining industry by consuming in a campaign of 150 days, 12,000 tons of coal, and 100 factories 1,900,000 tons of coal. The industries that would be established in coal and limestone mining, and burning of coke and other materials used in the manufacture of sugar, would add to the industries of this State, an amount that cannot be computed in dollars and cents, and would make us independent of the gold trust of the world.

A MOTIVATION TO COLONIZATION. "By reason of the demoralization of silver, the farmers and cotton producers of this country are compelled to pay a bounty of 40 per cent of all their earnings to the gold despots of the world, and the burden has become so great as to paralyze the wheat and cotton industries of this country, and in a few more years the producers of these great staples will find themselves in the same condition as are the great paying producers and slaves of the gold standard countries of Europe, unless relief is found in abandoning crops for exportation and raising beets or other crops for home consumption."

BEST CULTURE IN NEVADA. The climate and soil of Nevada are peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of sugar beets. These ought to be at least a half dozen beet sugar factories in the State. It has been demonstrated at the Nevada Agricultural Experiment Station that sugar beets grown at the station contain a higher percentage of sugar than those produced at any other place in the world, and the soil at the station does not differ in any respect from that of the surrounding country. There should be a factory in the vicinity of Reno, and also one at Lovelock, where the soil is similar to that of the Truckee Meadows. As it would require 5,000 acres of land to supply a beet sugar factory of ordinary capacity the production of beet sugar would stimulate the reclamation of desert lands. At present alfalfa, wheat and potatoes are the only profitable crops raised in Nevada and much of the alfalfa has to find a market in California. With a sugar beet factory less alfalfa would be produced and it would command a higher price. This would induce capital to build irrigating ditches and storage reservoirs and bring thousands of acres of land, which now produce nothing but sagebrush, under cultivation.

Emeralds Happenings. The following news items are culled from the Walker Lake Bulletin: A shipment of nine tons of ore from the Pamlico, taken out by Phil Bauer, yielded $1,050.

Sheriff Stewart has reappointed W. P. Haligan as Deputy Sheriff. A good appointment.

The Mt. Diablo Mining Co. has sixty-five men employed at its mine at Candelaria and about thirty at the mill at Soda Springs. A acre died in Hawthorne last Sunday morning of consumption. He has been failing for the past year and for the past two weeks he has been helpless.

Diamonds are supposed to be among the products of Inyo county, and it is whispered that a prospecting party will soon make a thorough investigation.

Pat Shannon of Marietta is in town. He made a shipment of ore last week to Selby in San Francisco. The ore will go about $200 per ton in gold, lead and silver.

Commissioner Wilson came in from Pine Grove Sunday. He reports that the cyanide process at the Grove did not prove successful, and the work was stopped. They will resume again next month with improved process.

Why Throw Away Money? What method is there in throwing away money in purchasing clothing, boots, shoes, underwear, shirts, tobacco, cigars, blankets, and in fact numbers of other necessities, when by purchasing them at Russell's auction room, two doors north of Coffin & Larcomb's store, you can save from 50 to 75 per cent on every purchase. There are no shoddy auction goods offered, but as fine a stock of gentlemen's wear as can be found anywhere in the State. The prices received at night govern the prices for the succeeding day. Call around and secure bargains.

THE PLUMMER INTERVIEW.

Two Versions of an Interview Between Which There Does Not Seem to be Any Very Striking Difference.

In the issue of the JOURNAL of Saturday, December 24, 1892, was published an interview with Mr. J. A. Plummer, a leading attorney of Elko, then on his way to permanently locate in Stockton, Cal., in which Mr. Plummer was reported saying as follows:

"The condition of silver has ruined the eastern section of the State and the people have lost hope because they have consumed almost everything they had waiting for better times. In Tuscarora only one whistle is blowing, that of the Nevada, where a few men are employed keeping the water down in the lower levels. There are several hundred people in that town who are now destitute and before the winter is over will have to subsist upon charity. They have no money enough to get away, while to remain means possible starvation before the close of the winter. Everybody who can is leaving. The situation there for many men of families is desperate. People are leaving Elko likewise, and in fact the outlook in all the eastern counties is gloomy and discouraging."

The interview was widely copied and seemed to awake a storm of adverse criticism in the eastern part of the State, particularly at Elko, the papers of which town proceeded to abuse Mr. Plummer in a manner which that gentleman certainly did not merit. In Tuesday's issue of the Elko Independent is published a letter from Mr. Plummer, in which he narrates the substance of what he remembers to have said in the interview. Commenting on this the Independent says:

"We are forced to say, however, that we can see but little difference between his version of the interview and that published in the JOURNAL."

However, in justice to Mr. Plummer, we append what he claims to have really said in the interview:

"My statements so far as Elko county is concerned were as follows: "The general business outlook in eastern Nevada is not at all encouraging. Under the existing conditions I do not see that any business save that of stock raising can be made to pay. The silver mining interests seem to have collapsed. A great many miners have left Tuscarora. I am told that there is only one whistle blowing in the camp, the Nevada. That there are a number of people there who, unless given credit by the merchants, will have to live on charity, as there seems to be no place for them to go, and a good many have nothing on which to go. The decline of Tuscarora has also seriously affected the small ranchers and others who have heretofore made a living by raising agricultural products and finding a market there. The conversation then drifted to the town of Elko, and in reply to questions concerning that place I stated that the town is dull and that several are leaving; that as for myself I very much disliked to leave, but I could not see that a young man who hoped to establish a practice in a place where he might always live had anything to justify him in remaining either in Elko or in any part of Nevada.

"That was all that was said about eastern Nevada, but following it a general conversation was engaged in in which the present outlook for favorable silver legislation was discussed, in which I stated that I had lost hope of any such action on the part of Congress and that I believed that nearly every one else in Elko had done the same. We also discussed the conditions in the several mining camps in the State, and I believe that I also said that unless a change came soon every mining camp in the State depending upon a silver product would be deserted; that only those mines where the ore carried a considerable quantity of gold could be operated; that as miners as a rule cannot turn their attention to other business there must necessarily be considerable distress among them and that a great number would not have the wherewithal to seek other fields of employment, and that there would be calls for charity before very long.

"The conversation extended over a wide field, in which I stated my views as to how long the mining industry could hold out with silver at 85, and what I pictured would inevitably come to pass under such conditions has been made to appear as already existing in its fullest intensity."

HIS GREAT PLAN.

How a Book Agent Worked His Victims. "John O'Callaghan, stand up, I hereby sentence you to pay a fine of $240, or serve a term of 120 days in the county jail."

Thus spoke the Judge. All this, together with the imposing ceremonies and interesting circumstances which led up to it, took place way up in Reno, Nevada, but it will be interesting to the people of Oakland and San Francisco.

At one time John O'Callaghan was the subject of several interesting biographical sketches in the newspapers around the bay.

The occasion which called forth these articles was his arrest for selling books on the O'Callaghan plan.

This O'Callaghan plan is the exclusive invention of the gentleman who bears its name. The plan is simple in the abstract yet intricate in its details.

Briefly outlined it is like this: A gentleman with a rich brogue calls at the house when the husband is absent and the lady is in. He has two volumes with him.

They are beautiful works. "Dante's Inferno" and Milton's "Paradise Lost," illustrated by Doré. The lady may have the entire set, of which they are samples, for $6, payable in six months. The lady signs a note for $6, which O'Callaghan deftly and scientifically elevates to $38 and discounts at the local bank.

Nothing could be more simple. Nothing should be more clear—it would be hard to find anything more pleasant and profitable for O'Callaghan. But the beautiful part comes in when six months later the banker presents to the husband of the lady of the house the note for $38, bearing his wife's signature, and life itself seems flat and tasteless to him as he realizes that O'Callaghan has six months the start of him on a downhill grade.

To a large number of people in San Francisco and Oakland, and in fact, pretty much all over California, this explanation of the O'Callaghan plan will be superfluous. They have already paid $38 to find out the workings of it.

O'Callaghan didn't get sent up for either the San Francisco or Oakland jobs. He got away. This was over two years ago.

Since then he has successfully worked Los Angeles, Santa Ana, San Diego and way stations. Doubling back on his tracks he next appeared in Sacramento, Stockton and the surrounding towns.

On the night Sullivan fought "once too often" O'Callaghan appeared in Grass Valley and he bet $100 that Sullivan would whip Corbett. When he was told that John L. was down and out he gazed for a moment in speechless astonishment at the speaker, and then, drawing himself up to his full height, he said, "I'll have to get even somehow."

The next day he sold books enough to cover the loss and O'Callaghan was himself again, though the blow was a hard one to a man of his fine temperament.

Nevada City enjoyed a visit from him next. Colfax entertained him for a time. Truckee opened up an extensive field for business in his line, and then he went to Reno. Here he fell. He got drunk. His avocation was investigated. The Judge decided that he cheated, and the Reno authorities have succeeded in doing something which the San Francisco authorities couldn't do—they have put him in a cell.—San Francisco Call.
